

Jackson School of the Arts Dance Instructors

Ginger McNetton
Dance Program Coordinator and Instructor

Ms. McNetton has been teaching and studying dance since 1981 as owner of her own studio or in collaboration with other studios. Since 2007 she has been the Dance Program Coordinator at the Jackson School of the Arts. Her degree from EMU is in Elementary Education, and she has a minor in dance education. She annually attends and participates in dance conventions and co-chaired the Mid-Michigan National Dance Week for four years.

Nicole Grazier

Nicole has a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Visual Communications from the University of Oklahoma and a minor in Architecture. She also holds a Texas Teacher Certification for K-12. She has worked as a graphic designer at the University of Oklahoma and at JAM Websites and she was a designer and illustrator at Fossil, Inc from 2006-2008. She taught art at the Winston School for grades 1-8 where she also planned the International Arts Festival. She was a camp instructor and competition judge for Cheer America and an Acrobatic performer for Cirque de La Mer for Sea World in San Diego.

Koren Farmer

Ms. Farmer began dancing at a very young age at Connie's School of Dance and Glenn's School of Dance. She primarily studied ballet and has been certified in Cecchetti levels I-III. She also took tap instruction for 10 years. Koren teaches Mommy & Me, Creative Movement, pre-ballet, ballet and the new ballet company class and performance and choreography class at the Jackson School of the Arts. She has a background in child care, is a fabric/fashion artist and owner of Cuppa.

Whitney Williams

Whitney studied dance for 8 years at the Grosse Ile Dance Academy and has continued to dance and train through the Jackson School of the Arts. At the Jackson School of the Arts she teaches creative movement, pre-ballet and ballet for young students and also teaches an adult/teen hip hop class. Through a joint project with DaVinci Institute and Jackson School of the Arts she is teaching dance to middle school girls with a program called Brain Gym.

Corrine Fritzsche

Corrine has been dancing for all long as she can remember and studied at Cheri's Dance Academy, Spotlight Dance Studio and Washtenaw Community College. She has also participated in various dance workshops and dance conventions. Her dance training includes competitive dancing in which she has received numerous awards. She has choreographed for Spotlight Dance Studio and Cheri's and has danced at special events like Toys for Tots and at half-time during Pistons games. This is her third year teaching Hip Hop and Pom at the Jackson School of the Arts.

Sarah Reynolds

Sarah has been dancing for 28 years with a focus in jazz and ballet. She has also studied contemporary, hip hop, and break dancing. She studied under Susan Vaughn and was a teacher assistant for several years before joining Jackson School of the Arts in 2011. Her dance achievements include placing first in a dance competition for jazz, dancing the young lead in the Nutcracker at the age of 12 under the direction of Kristen Berger, performing for the Indianapolis 500 Race Conference, and recording a dance video for a Lansing Community College Dance Program TV commercial.

Danielle Selby

Ballroom Instructor

Danielle Selby received her BFA in modern dance and choreography from the College at Brockport, State University of New York. She has presented choreography at Revisited, an annual Alumni showcase in Manhattan, NY; Fertile Ground in Queens, NY; Etc. Performance Series in Philadelphia, PA; and Rebound in New Haven CT. She performed at the Judson Church as a part of the Bailout series and at the House of Blues in New Orleans, LA. Selby has danced for Libertina Dance Company (Queensbury, NY) and Nacre Dance Company (Albany, NY). She became a member of Happendance Professional Company and To Go Team for the 2011-2012 season.
